

SEVERE CHARGES
LODGED AGAINST
CAPTAIN ZAPPI

Said to Have Partly Stripped and Abandoned
Malmgren

ARGUMENTS ARE ON

Reporter Reputed to Be A Most Reliable
One

By Edward L. Deuss
(INS Staff Correspondent) MOSCOW, July 23.—Sensational charges that Capt. Zappi, one of the survivors of the Italia tragedy, not only abandoned Dr. Finn Malmgren, the Swedish scientist, alive, but also partially stripped him of his clothing were made today by the correspondent of the Moscow newspaper 'Vercherine'.
The correspondent is aboard the Soviet ice-breaker Krassin, which rescued Zappi and Captain Mariano from their perilous haven on an ice-floe.

The correspondent further claims absolute confirmation for the statement that Zappi, when rescued, wore Malmgren's overcoat and heavy woolen socks.

Altogether, the correspondent claimed Zappi wore three coats and three pairs of heavy socks, while Mariano was lying on the ice scantily clothed in a single pair of socks, his uniform, and overcoat.

As a result of his scanty garb, the correspondent charges, Mariano's leg froze, and its amputation was later necessary.

The correspondent states that a physician who examined the two men after they were rescued found that Zappi had been without food for only five days and not thirteen as he claimed. Mariano, on the other hand, had been suffering the pangs of hunger for a much longer period.

Expecting death momentarily, Mariano gave Zappi permission to devour his body after he died, the correspondent said.

He declares that while the seven survivors of the Italia, rescued by the Krassin were aboard that vessel, they spent much time arguing over the necessity for an international investigation of the Nobile expedition.

Professor Samoylovich, head of the Krassin rescue expedition today stated that when he visited General Nobile aboard the Citta Di Milano, the Italian leader of the ill-fated polar expedition begged to be allowed to accompany the Krassin in the search for Capt. Amundsen's party and the six missing men in the Alessandri group.
Samoylovich said he consented with the understanding that the Soviet relief commission would have to approve his participating in the rescue work.
He appeared to be extremely nervous and depressed, Samoylovich said.

The correspondent who obtained the Zappi story is named Mindlin and is reputed to be "one of the most reliable reporters in Moscow." It was pointed out that his radiograms could not have been sent from the Krassin without the consent of the ship's commander.
The Soviet Relief Commission, however, is without any confirmation of the truth of Mindlin's statements.

Members of the Commission said that Nobile was not allowed to accompany the Krassin because he is physically disabled and needs medical attention. In view of Nobile's present physical condition it was believed that he could not render any material assistance to the searchers.

CROYDON ATHLETIC CLUB
MAKES GREAT STRIDES

Two Basketball Teams Had Fine Record; Baseball
IX Doing Well

"SUPPORT EXCELLENT"

CROYDON, July 23. — Having run through a most successful basketball season, purchased suits for two teams engaged in that sport, won fifty percent. of the baseball games played thus far, and secured new suits for the latter team, is the record of the Croydon Athletic Club since January.

"Many people hereabouts thought we couldn't do it," said G. A. Kimbel, manager of the baseball team connected with the association, today. "But since our organization last January we have passed through one successful sport season, with the first basketball team winning 19 out of a total of 30 games played; and the second being victorious in 25 of a total of 30.
Twelve basketball suits are owned by the club, besides those purchased for the baseball players. We have spent in all about $275. The support is just splendid in this community." Mr. Kim-bel is likewise secretary and treasurer of the team, while "Ted" Coyne is captain.

Since the commencement of the baseball season the grounds have been fixed, so that now the men have a splendid basis for the diamond at State road and Emily avenue. A dozen bats have likewise been bought and other paraphernalia. Officers of the athletic club are: William Gray, president; Frank Bahr, treasurer; trustees, William Keene, George Benne-man and Leo Moore.

Batting averages for those who have been connected with the baseball team are as follows (including game of July 15th): Held, 1.000; Keene, .486; Polk, .478; Trischler, .457; Cahill, .412; Gleason, .371; Tryon, .333; Miller, 3.00; Guynn, .296; Coyne, .290; Coles, 2.85; H. Miller, .278; Moore, .269; Trindle, .250; Gleason, .213; Macauley, 1.43; Jones, 1.36; Wildman, .900.

"One of our rules," says the manager, "is that only local men be permitted to play upon the team. We have been most fortunate in securing a group of fellows that has been able to assist in gaining this fine record."

Of the total of 12 baseball games played, six have been won by Croydon. The diamond battles are played each Sunday afternoon, here. On July 29th the Detroit Tigers, of Holmesburg, will be the attraction; August 5th, Harriman Field Club; August 12th, Howard A. C.; and August 19th, Steel Heddle Company, of Philadelphia.

SUPPER AT ORPHANAGE

A most deserving institution, and one at which a Bristol boy is housed, the Carversville Orphanage, is to be helped on Wednesday evening by the public, when a supper is served there.
Tickets are on sale, and suppers will

Practical Demonstrations Will

Course

STATE ITEMS GIVEN

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—(INS)— —Medical students spend too much time in classroom and too little time in clinics and research laboratories in the opinion of the staff of the School of Medicine of Temple University which has announced that 1,000 hours will be cut from the theoretical side of the medical course at the institution.

These 1,000 hours in the four year course as outlined by Dr. Frank H.
Krusen, associate dean of the school of Medicine, will be devoted to practical demonstrations in the clinical laboratories, at the bedside of hospital patients, and in the conduct of original research investigations.
"Our purposes," said Dr. Krusen, "is to lessen the strictly didactic features of our course, so that the time thus made available may be devoted to more practical purposes. The full course at Temple covers 5,000 hours.
Hereafter it will be 4,000 hours, the balance to be spent in active clinical

HUSSEY LODGED IN JAIL AT NORRISTOWN
WHILE ALLEGED COMPANION, MRS. SAUVEUR IS RELEASED ON OWN RECOGNIZANCE

Couple Taken Into Custody from Summer Colony near Ser-geantsville, N. J. — Dr. Hussey Still Suffering From Delusion

NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 23.—(INS)— —Lindley M. Hussey, author and chemist of some prominence, was in jail here today, while his alleged companion, Mrs. Grace Sauveur, daughter of the late Henry J. Teltow, wealthy mer colony four miles south of Sergeantsville, N. J., on a warrant sworn to by Dr. Virginia Alvarez Hussey, attractive Spanish matron, and the author's wife. The warrant was issued July 16, and charges Hussey with infidelity and non-support.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hussey is confined in the same jail, in a cell directly above that of her husband, and is still suffering from the delusion that she shot and killed him and "the other woman." Last Friday noon she came into police headquarters here and announced the "double murder" saying the bodies would be found near her former home in Parkerford. When told yesterday that her husband had been found alive and that he was in the same jail she declared:

"It can't be; it's not so. I killed him. I killed him."

Detective Patrick Hannely, who was retained by Mrs. Hussey a week ago when she swore out warrants for the arrest of her husband, went to the summer colony yesterday when he learned that Hussey and Mrs. Sauveur had been located and persuaded them to waive extradition and return. Mrs.
Hussey swore out the warrant before she became obsessed with the idea that she had committed a double murder.

Hussey denied that he had been unfaithful to his wife. He said he was still devoted to her despite the fact that she has been suffering from a mental ailment for some time past.
Mrs. Sauveur, who has been a divorcee three times, is merely a friend, he said.

The two were taken into custody early yesterday from a lodge in a sum-

AUTO RACE DRIVER
KILLED AS CAR
SKIDS ON HILL

J. Burton Wolf, Philadelphia, Meets With Fatal Accident near Doylestown

COMPANION IS INJURED

Wolf Was Driving Friend to Parent's Home at Scranton

J. Burton Wolf, 30, of Philadelphia, a well-known automobile race driver, was killed yesterday near Doylestown when he tried to pass another car at high speed.

Wolf, who lives at 5346 Leshner street, Philadelphia, was killed early yesterday morning when his automobile overturned on the Lackawanna Trail at Curley's Hill, about five miles above Doylestown. Death was due to a fractured skull.

John French, 26 years old, of 2302 Marshall street, Philadelphia, another automobile racer, sustained injuries to the head and was treated at the Doylestown Hospital.

According to the Doylestown State Highway Patrol, both drivers had been drinking. Two bottles containing some liquor were found near the car.

Wolf left Philadelphia shortly after midnight to drive French to the home of the latter's parents at Scranton.
The car was descending the hill yesterday morning at a fast rate of speed, police say, when it struck loose cob-blestones at the shoulder of the road.
This caused the machine to turn completely over.

French crawled through the windshield and extricated Wolf from beneath the car. He placed the victim in a passing machine and had him taken to the Doylestown Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. French had Wolf's purse in his pocket at the time and he was placed in the Bucks County Prison until the authorities investigated. French told the police that Wolf complained of feeling tired and that he was about to change seats with him when the accident occurred. French was later released from the prison.

Wolf was known as the "Dare Devil Racer," and participated in several of the races at the South Langhorne track. Dr. John J. Sweeney, of Doyle-town, Bucks County Coroner, viewed the body and had it removed to a mortuary. Later the remains were shipped to Philadelphia.

RIVERSIDE THEATRE

Sherman said war was hell but it's just one long laugh in Warner Bros. picture, "Ham and Eggs at the Front," at the Riverside Theatre, tonight and tomorrow. This is the story by Darryl Francis Zanuck that tells about a regiment of colored troops in France—and particularly the humorous adventures of a couple of dorkie pals nicknamed by their companions Ham and Eggs.

The cast of "Ham and Eggs at the Front" is played entirely by popular actors and actresses who applied the art of make-up with burnt cork to achieve the proper appearance. The feminine lead is handled by Myrna Loy and the roles of Ham and Eggs are played respectively by Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin. Both these men have achieved comedy triumphs before but this picture gives them the most unusual opportunity they have ever enjoyed. "Ham and Eggs at the Front" was directed by Roy Del Ruth.

PRAISE GOLF COURSE
AT LANGHORNE CLUB

Nine Sporty Holes Added To Course During Recent Months

NEW PRO IS POPULAR

LANGHORNE, July 23.—Visiting golfers highly praise the new eighteen hole golf course of the Bucks County Country Club, here, opened recently.
Improvement was made to the first nine holes and nine more were added, giving the club one of the sportiest
"pasture pool" meadows in the East.

The new pro, George Chapple, a young Scotsman, also has become very popular with those who frequent the course.

The first is a par-4 affair, and a 200 yard drive leaves an easy mashie or mashie-niblick shot to the large green that faces the shot. The second is a 525-yard test, the longest on the course, and the drive and second shot must be placed just right in order to reach the green with the third. It is a stiff par 5 where few birdies are made.

The third calls for a pitch of about 155 yards to an elevated green, which, however, is generously large and, although almost completely surrounded by traps, has a throat to aid those not so sure of their drives. The fourth is a 455-yard hole with a rated par of 5 and, because of the lay of the land, is a hard proposition to make in a birdie 4. But it can be done. If the drive is placed well to the left but not off the fairway.

The fifth is another neat one shot-ter with a green that will hold any kind of reasonable pitch shot but with plenty of traps to catch the balls that stray off the line. The short players will find a narrow throat for a ship-and-run shot. The sixth has a slight dog's-leg motif and the traps have been scientifically placed, but two accurate shots will reach the carpet and a par 4 should be the reward.

The seventh, the shortest hole on the course, as it measures only 125 yards, calls for an absolutely accurate pitch to a well-trapped green. If, however, the ball reaches the carpet, it will stick.

The eighth requires a good drive, as a small stream and a ditch present fairway hazards and the second shot must not be overplayed or much trouble will ensue. It is a very reasonable par 4 hole. The ninth measures only

2 MORE ATTEMPTS MADE TO DESTROY
COLONIAL THEATRE

Paper and Burlap Bags Were Piled on Rear of Stage

MADE LITTLE HEADWAY

Firemen Quickly Extinguished the Flames and Prevented Loss

Two more attempts to burn down the New Colonial Theatre were made yesterday, but quick work of the Consolidated Fire Department prevented the flames from gaining any great headway. The loss due to the fire yesterday was slight.

Firemen were called to the theatre shortly before noon and found the building afire in two separate places on the stage. Old papers and burlap bags had been used as a means of starting the flames.

The firemen drenched the place with water so as to quickly extinguish the flames and in this manner prevented any serious loss.

This is the ninth time that the theatre building has been afire during the past few months. Recently a colored lad, Edward Wapples, 12, of Penn street, after being taken into custody, confessed that he had fired the structure on seven different occasions.
Five of the seven times that fires were started the firemen were called, but on two other occasions no alarm was sounded and the effort failed.

Wapples along with his brother, who also confessed to starting fire here, was taken before Judge Ryan, at Doylestown, and sentenced to the Reformatory.

Fire Chief James L. McGee, has strong suspicions of those who are implicated in the affair of yesterday, and if sufficient evidence can be had arrests will be made.

The New Colonial Theatre building is a large frame structure and situated in a thickly congested district.
Should flames gain much headway, considerable property in the neighborhood would be endangered.

H. C. Reichert Tendered A Pleasing Surprise Party

CROYDON, July 23.—H. C. Reichert, of Belmont avenue and Neshaminy road, was pleasantly surprised on Saturday afternoon when his co-workers from the Nixon & Company plant, Philadelphia, arrived at his home to assist in celebrating his birthday anniversary.

The group, comprised of eight individuals, enjoyed bathing during the afternoon, this being followed by a sumptuous dinner. Cards kept the guests occupied during the evening hours.

GRAND THEATRE

Successfully to depict Singapore, melting pot of the Orient, on the screen, took no less than twenty nationalities. Extras of every possible type figure in the Singapore scenes in Ramon Novarro's new starring vehicle "Across to Singapore," which comes tonight to the Grand Theatre for a two day run.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature is a vivid romance of China and the sea, based on Ben Ames Williams' famous romance. In the Singapore scenes Chinese, Japanese, Malays, Africans, Siamese and dozens of other nationalities appear.

Joan Crawford plays the heroine of the new play, and Ernest Torrence, Anna May Wong, Frank Currier, James Mason, Edward Connelly, Duke Martin, Dan Wolheim, and others of note are among the supporting players. William Nigh, famous director of "Mr. Wu," directed the new screen drama, much of which was filmed at sea on the old clipper Narwahl, which made a three weeks' cruise with the screen players for the sea scenes, storm, and Oriental pirate battle.

DEARTH OF NEW INVESTICES
Passing strange it is that no one has yet compiled an indexed anthology of terms of invective and cursing for use on several occasions by business men.

There are books which aim at supplying funny stories appropriate for wedding breakfasts, lodge banquets, the opening of a parish bazaar or the occasion for the presentation of prizes at the club; there are printed collections of venerable toasts for use at dull dinners; there are "Complete Letter Writers," which tell how to write every form of epistle; but there is not even an abridged dictionary of hard words for high feelings.

One reason why terms of abuse have been neglected by compilers lies in the fact that there are two standards of efficiency in a cursing match. Some aspire to quality in terminology while others measure this human accomplishment by quantity and speed.

At this stage of the world's progress a really new and effective term of abuse is as hard to discover as an original surname—this generation rests upon it oars, content with the generous legacy of the past.

However, there is a real need and no doubt a great demand for the codification of this legacy of cuss words and vituperatives for the convenience of those who, in moments of deeper crisis, have need of a few well-chosen words. Perhaps if such a work were in wide circulation many terms now in common usage but hardly admissible to polite society would be unable to compete with more poetical and yet more expressive expletives.

THE OPTIMIST

One of the encouraging evidences of the sanity of the public mind is the growing impatience with so-called "Pollyannaism." Genuine optimism does not consist in disregarding the unpleasant parts of life. Neither is it a thoughtless satisfaction with present conditions without thought of the future. Still less is it that state of mind that distinguished Mr. Micawber, who was always "waiting for something to turn up."

Antecedent to a justifiable attitude of optimism must be an unprejudiced and thorough analysis of the situation; in which both dark and bright sides must be equally clear; then a profound conviction, based on the evidence of history and personal experience, of the slow but irresistible conquest of right over wrong, of truth over falsehood not yet fulfilled, but eternally fulfilling.

But no one who has merely a passive faith in the rightness of things is entitled to the name of optimist. His belief must be quickened into action, and here the pragmatic modern attitude manifests its sensible demands for consistent living. The old proverb, "All things come to him who waits," has received a characteristically modern supplement, "But it comes a whole lot quicker if he goes after it."

Your sense of importance is especially offensive to others who feel more important.

Eighty per cent of transatlantic passengers this summer have been women. The men must work to meet the bills.

When a woman is selecting peaches she doesn't want clings. But with a man it is different.

Wonder what Mr. Clam Shaver thinks about, or doesn't a man who doesn't wear the pants in his family think?

ECHOES OF THE PAST

Thirty-five years ago, according to a copy of Newtown Enterprise, dated April 29, 1893, a reception was tendered Professor George L. Maris, principal of the George Friends' School, at the home of Thomas Briggs on Washington avenue. This entertainment was arranged in order that the gentlemen who were to have general supervision of that institution of learning could become more intimately acquainted with the Newtown people and explain the proposed management of the school. The arriving guests were presented to Prof. Maris by Mr. and Mrs. Briggs after which refreshments were served. In the social discourse, Prof. Maris explained the literary and moral requirements that would be demanded of teachers and pupils. A corps of ten efficient teachers, each a specialist in his line had been engaged.

The fifth annual meeting of the Bucks County School Directors' Association was held in Doylestown. Among the speakers were Dr. J. N. Richards, Fallsington, R. B. Kelly, Bristol; Edward Briggs, Middletown, and John K. Wildman, Bristol.

Christian S. Fetter, of Southampton, has sold his farm at $140 per acre.

Invitations were issued for the wedding of Miss Bessie Louise, daughter of Mrs. C. B. Schurz and Charles Moore Headley, at All Saints' Memorial Chapel, Fallsington.

George W. DeCoursey, of Newtown and Miss Lizzie H. Mahan, daughter of County Commissioner George L. Mahan, of Newtown township, were married by the Rev. W. Dayton Roberts, in Philadelphia. A reception was tendered the newly married couple upon their return from a trip to Washington.

A petition for damming the Delaware River below New Hope, signed by 2000 citizens of Bucks county was forwarded to Senator Ross to present to the legislature.

Samuel Longshore was having a two story phosphate house erected at his place of business at Langhorne station.

A heavy wind and rain storm blew down the hay house on William Newbold's place.

Charles D. Weart and wife, of Yardley, were on a visit to the World's Fair at Chicago.

George W. Hall, who had previously kept the store at Makefield P. O. had taken the new store at Walton station on the New Hope Railroad.

ITEMS OF INTEREST AS CLIPPED FROM NEWSPAPER FILES

Barclay Eyre, presided at the Bucks County First-day School Union held in Langhorne. Anna C. Scarborough, delegate from Wrightstown to First-day School Association in Philadelphia made a report. Evan T. Worthington, in a well-prepared paper, discussed, "Primitive Christianity."

Sparks from a passing locomotive on the New Hope railroad set fire to the woods on the premises of Joseph Anderson, on Buckingham mountain, and burned fiercely throughout the day. The flames were finally extinguished after burning over the north side of the mountain.

Miss Matilda Booz, of Bristol, had been re-elected superintendent of the schools of that town and her salary increased from $600 to $800 per year.

The closing dance of the season of the Langhorne Social was under the management of Harry Woodman, Joshua Richardson and Malachi White.

The bottom of the wooden aqueduct over Hough's creek, below Taylorsville, carrying the Delaware Division Canal fell out, draining the 9-mile level between New Hope and Yardley. It required a week to make the necessary repairs to resume navigation.

Irwin Ogelsby, a Yardley boy, who had left that place 28 years before, was visiting friends and relatives. He was engaged in the milling business at Big Rapids, Michigan.

F. B. Wright had been appointed postmaster at Emille; B. S. Doan at Mechanics Valley and Harry F. Molloy at Pineville.

SYNOPSIS
Lovely Rose Shannon is innocently imprisoned on the charge of being connected with the Mercer Bank robbery. After a week she is released, but detectives trail her. She is met by Chuck White, member of a gang of crooks of which the Professor is leader. Pretending to be friend her, Chuck takes her to the Professor, who thinks Rose knows where the stolen money is. Promising to take her to his aunt in the country, Chuck persuades Rose to put on the new clothes he has bought her. "Bobbie," a member of the gang, is ordered to put on Rose's cast-off clothing.

But Bobbie was not waiting for any instructions. Without further ado she slipped her dress off over her head and began pulling on the one so recently worn by Rose. She stepped in front of the mirror. The garment fitted her as though she had been the first and original owner.

"Looks all right, huh?" Bobbie turned to Chuck, who was watching the transformation with no small degree of interest.

"Great!" he approved. "Say, listen. What's gonna do with the dicks? Did the Prof tell ya?"
"Do with 'em?" Bobbie laughed. "I'm gonna take 'em on a nice lil' joy ride an' ditch 'em. They can't do nothin' to me for wearin' a coat an' hat I got second-hand. I never seen th' jane that wore 'em. She never seen me. Mebbe they just made a mistake. Mebbe they was tartin' you'n me all th' time, see? Jeez! I can think 'em up as fast as you ast 'em," she grinned.

He patted the girl's hand and bent over and kissed her on the forehead.

"Well, stop thinking for a while an' give your brain a rest," Chuck advised. "Get that hat on 'til I get a squint at you."

Bobbie kicked off her shoes and stepped into the old satin pumps belonging to Rose. "A little big," she announced with feminine pride, "but they'll do." She picked up the coat and slipped it on, and then went over to the mirror to adjust the hat. "Tell me when I get it right," she asked.

"Jeez, how should I know?" Chuck retorted.

"Oh, ain't she your girl friend?" Bobbie teased. "Whatcha been hangin' round Kelly's for all this time? She give ya th' shiner, didn't she?"

"I'll give you a poke in the beeper if you don't hurry up," Chuck retorted, frowning.

"Aw, go to hell!" Bobbie grimaced. "An' don't be in such a rush to beat it. She'll keep."

"Come on, you're set!" Chuck picked up Rose's discarded satchel and thrust it into Bobbie's hand, seized her by the arm and hurried her out into the hallway. "Now watch your step, kid. That's a great makeup. You're gonna put one over on 'em dicks, all right. Give 'em as much 'come-on' as you can an' for God's sake, keep 'em with you."

He ran on down the steps and opened the door leading into the shop. He glanced about the room and caught Sparrow's eye. Sparrow nodded in the affirmative. Chuck beckoned to the girl on the steps. She tiptoed down, standing in the doorway, waiting for her cue. Sparrow moved leisurely and quietly across the room and looked back towards the office. He raised his head slightly towards the Professor.

With a light, swift step Bobbie was across the room and at the door. Silently she lifted the latch and in a second she had disappeared. From his vantage point at the window the Mug could watch her crossing the sidewalk and entering the cab that Chuck and Rose had left standing at the curb. He saw the girl lean forward, speak to the driver, and then lean back in her seat. He saw Simpson and Cowles speeding around the corner towards their parked car.

The taxi driver released his brakes, and started at a slow rate of speed down the street. In another moment the black motor of the detectives rounded the corner and picked up the trail of the fast disappearing cab.

The two men rode along in silence, Cowles bent on keeping track of the taxi. At last he reached a safe distance and allowed the machine to slow down.

"Well, what do you think of that?" He turned to Simpson.

"Oh, I dunno," Simpson cleared his throat and stared straight ahead of him.

"Looks like we're going to pick up something pretty soon, I'd say," Cowles retorted. "I'll bet that baby's beating it for home right now. She didn't stay long, that's a cinch. Worried about the mazzuma, I guess."

"Mebbe," Simpson responded laconically.

And as Simpson ruminated on the possible activities of the antique shop, the various members of that group were speculating on the activities of the detectives. They knew that Bobbie would lead the two sleuths on and finally wind up at her apartment. Once there, the dicks would watch her activities, keep a line on her until they discovered her identity, and by that time Chuck and Rose would be well on their way with no fear of detection.

"Say, Chuck, how 'long're youse gonna be gone?" Sparrow asked as soon as Bobbie had got off safely.

"Oh, about a week, I guess. I'll get everything I want out of that baby by that time," Chuck asserted confidently. "Look here, Sparrow. He drew his companion aside and whispered hurriedly, glancing back over his shoulder towards the Professor's office. "If anything happens, you lemme know, see. I ain't expecting nothing, but you can't be. What I mean's if I get stuck down here an' the Prof starts any arty work, you tip me off."

"Sure, I will, Chuck. I good..." He raised his eyes and dropped them again quickly as the Professor came back into the room with Rose.

"Oh, there's one more thing I must show you before you go," the Professor insisted with the air of a collector whose greatest joy is the exhibition of his beloved objects. "This," he picked up an exquisitely bound book from a pile on the center table, "is an old, seventeenth century bible—English. The binding is most unusual."

"It is lovely," Rose took the book and examined it.

Chuck, his tongue in his cheek, winked across at Sparrow, who grinned appreciatively. Even Mug sent back a derisive smile from his post at the window.

"Then, my dear, you must take it with you. I want you to have it. You appreciate beautiful things," Heminway patted the girl's hand and bent over and kissed her on the forehead. "And now you two children must hurry. Goodness, it's twelve o'clock!"

"Yes, come on, honey," Chuck gathered up Rose's bag and started her towards the door.

"Thank you, Professor. And good-bye. You've been awful kind to me. I write you a letter just as soon as we get to the country." She shook hands with the man and put her arm through Chuck's.

"Good-bye, Mr. Sparrow, and Dr. Mug—Me—I can't say it," she laughed.

The two hurried to the door, followed by the Professor. They stepped out into the street. Chuck whistled for a passing taxi. The machine drew up, skidding to a stop. Chuck threw the bags into the car and helped Rose in. He followed her, calling out their destination to the driver. With a whirl they were off.

CHAPTER XI

The afternoon sun of an early April day filtered through the bare, brown branches of the great trees, making slender shadows that danced for the sheer joy of approaching spring. It played upon the hard, dark earth, still chilled with the blankets of snow that had so recently covered it, warming it into ecstatic stirrings; causing it to send up slender pale green shoots to dress its drab unloveliness.

In a shallow hollow, its back against the hillside, nestled an old stone house. Fat, leafy boxwood trees bordered the path that led up to the deep-paneled door, with its brass knocker gleaming against the time-worn wood. Over the lawn that stretched out from the long porch, pale purple, yellow and white crocuses day-starred the ground, their long green spikes shooting upward like protective lances.

THE CHARM OF THE ENGLISH COTTAGE

(House H-A-54)

By R. C. Hunter & Bro., Architects, New York

The English cottage type of architecture is ever gaining favor for the small American home, due largely to the elusive and picturesque charm of the cottage of old England.

And, in proper hands, the American modification of these charming cottages retains most of the flavor of the old and combines with it the modern American demand of an economical, livable and convenient plan.

In the little cottage herewith illustrated the architects have drawn freely from old England for the exterior and have arranged a thoroughly modern American plan to accompany it.

One enters the house through a vestibule, into the livable room. The stairway is centrally located so that it serves both the main rooms and the service portion of the house.

The kitchen has a breakfast nook adjoining, also a large closet. It has a complete equipment.

This house measures thirty feet, four inches across the front, so a forty-five foot lot allows plenty of room for a driveway on one side and good clear space on the other side.

Cost about $8,200.

Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House H-A-54.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 23.—(INS)—More than 1,000,000 souvenir postcards are sold in Gettysburg every year, according to estimates made by William H. Tipton, photographer, who is credited with originating the idea of that type of postcards here.

Tipton, who was in business here before the battle, said that the volume of postcards sold decreased somewhat during the time that the two-cent stamp rule was in effect but that now that the one cent rate was again effective there was considerable increase in the number of sales.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 23.—(INS)—Marathon dances like other popular fads have had their day and now they are on the decline—especially in Pittsburgh where they found their most cordial reception.

The death of the dance was due to the decision of Public Safety Director James M. Clark to refuse any more dance marathon permits.

"I'm sick and tired of these dances," Clark said, "and I'll issue no more permits. I'll not see one of the dancers drop dead and be blamed for it myself."

panied her, to await a hearing today.

Her husband charged her with forcible entry, malicious mischief and assault and battery. The woman said that she would make an assault and battery charge against her husband. Mrs. Rensen told Justice James that her husband recently gave her a check for more than $100, but that he still was delinquent in the alimony.

Damage to the extent of $600 was done to the furniture, glassware and other articles in the Rensen boarding house before the woman could be stopped, the police say. Mirrors were torn from the wall and pictures broken. A Victrola was thrown out the door, rugs pulled from the floors and tossed outside in the rain and all furniture upset and some battered to pieces.

When arrested the woman had two pictures, one of her three children, taken from her husband's place, under an arm. The lane leading to the boarding house was strewn with broken glassware, dishes and vases. Boarders who were aroused thought the place had been struck by lightning. They will be called as witnesses at the hearing today.

275 yards, but is a dog's leg and is so cleverly trapped that it is almost impossible to reach and to hold the green from the tee. A good drive over an old quarry leaves, however, a comparatively simple chip shot to the carpet with always a sporting chance of a birdie 3. Par for the first nine is 35.

The tenth is the pride of the club and is, indeed, a corker. It is reminiscent of the famous fifth at Pine Valley, except that instead of a broad lake there is a creek about 150 yards from the tee. The green is 210 yards away and must be "carried" to get a par 3, barring the holing of the unexpected niblick shot. The fairway is narrow and lined with trees.

The eleventh is a testing two-shotter because of the narrow fairway and the "stop 'em" that must be put on the mashie shot in order to hold the green. The twelfth affords only a slight let-down. The drive must carry a creek, but the little stream is only about seventy-five yards from the tee and the fairway is broad. The second is an easy mashie iron or full mashie to a generous green.

The thirteenth must be carefully in-These excellent pictures show the marvelous shoulder development of Gene Tunney, champion of the world, and Tom Heeney, challenger for his title, who meet at the Yankee Stadium in New York. There isn't a great deal to choose between the two men, judging from their backs. Tunney, however, has the longer reach, which will help him tremendously.

SIX VICTORIOUS MONTHS for THE VICTORY SIX

When the Victory Six was announced six months ago it was the talk of the town.

It was a great car then; it is an even greater car now. It has stood the test. Each month has seen a substantial increase in Victory Six sales.

Not because of what we have been saying for six months. Or because of what we say now. But because of what the Victory Six is.

The snappiest, best looking, speediest car in its class. A car you should try out—now—yourself at the wheel.
